The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-3, 5-7, 9-12, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. 4901531 (Kubo et al) in view of U.S. 5761921 (Hori et al). Kubo et al discloses a waste heat recovery system using the heat from an internal combustion engine 50 for driving a Rankine cycle including an expander 235, condenser 210, pump 212, through a heat exchanger, note column 8, lines 64-68 to column 9, lines 1-30, Kubo et al clearly explains that the heat exchanger in his system can be used to transfer heat to at least two sources, 1) oil cooler from pump 221 to cylinder heat 231 and intake 230 of the heat exchanger, and 2) the working fluid of the Rankine cycle of course. Kubo et al does not disclose the organic working fluid. Hori et al is relied upon to disclose it's well known to use a combined cycles power plant having a Rankine cycle using refrigerant or organic fluid as claimed. It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to use organic fluid as the working fluid or refrigerant in Kubo et al as taught by Hori et al for the purpose of achieving appropriate work output. Regarding claims 5-7, it would have been obvious to select different types of heat exchanger in Kubo et al for the purpose of improving the heat exchanging rates.

Claims 4, 8, 13-14, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. § 103(a) as being unpatentable over U.S. 4901531 (Kubo et al) in view of U.S. 5761921 (Hori et al) and US 5056315 (Jenkins). Kubo et al as modified by Hori et al discloses all the claimed subject matter as set forth above in the rejection of claim 1, but Kubo et al does not disclose the heat exchanger includes lubricant. Jenkins is relied upon to disclose it's well known to use a heat exchanger 70 for 3 different heat exchanging fluid including lubricant, the heat exchanging sections 58, 60, 64, can be mounted either parallel or series in said heat exchanger 70 (note column 7, lines 47-59). It would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to include lubricant heat exchanging means in Kubo et al as taught by Jenkins for the purpose of improving the conditions of the lubricant.

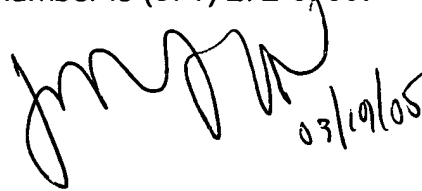

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Bronicki, Jones et al, and Radcliff et al disclose combined power systems using multi-sources heat exchangers.
